Ban the Burka

A Lib-Dem MP has called for a debate on whether or not, the Burka should be banned from being worn in public.

Our position is clear. Britain is a predominantly Christian country and 7th century Islamic face veils have no place on our streets.

If Islamists are unhappy about this position, then "off to the airport"!

Mind Britain's Business

Our congratulations to those politicians who voted against Britain getting involved in military action against the legitimate government of Syria. It is still unfathomable as to why Britain and other Western nations give any support to the Syrian rebels. Since the uprising, two million Syrians have become homeless refugees. Syrians, who prior to the uprising, had homes, jobs and businesses. The simple answer to restoring peace in Syria is to stop the uprising.

The rebels, a coalition of Militant Islamists, army deserters, and foreign fighters linked to the Al Quada terrorist group, regularly commit war crimes against unarmed prisoners, and atrocities against Syrian Christians. If Britain were to take sides then it should be supporting the legitimate government, but it is far preferable that our government simply, Mind Britain's Business.

My Thanks

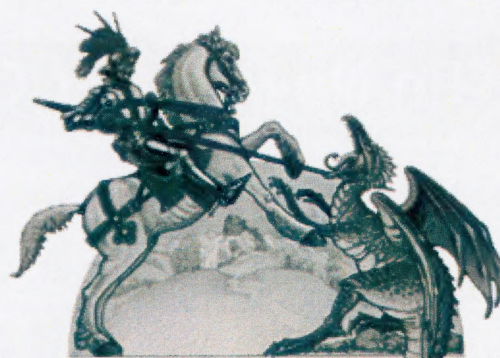

I would like to publicly thank those Comrades from the League of St George who, at their own expense, travelled to Flanders on a wet Thursday, to pay their respects to our late Comrade, Roger Spinnewijn. On several occasions over the past 40 years, Roger worked closely with members of the League on projects to achieve our common aims. He was a tried and tested Comrade, whose bravery and loyalty was unquestionable. He will be sadly missed by all who knew him.

Farewell, our Lion of Flanders. It was an honour to have known you.

Overseas Aid Grows While Britons Rely on Foodbanks!

As the Government-imposed austerity package bites, blighting British lives, forcing tens of thousands of native Britons to rely on charity food banks to feed their families, our overseas aid budget is planned to increase to £12 Billion!

As the government continues to allow unscrupulous employers to exploit British workers with "zero hours" work contracts, and the "bedroom tax" forces native Britons to move out of homes they have lived in for years, almost £2.6 Billion pounds of taxpayers money is being given to just five African countries to help fund their space programmes!

The Trussell Trust is the largest food bank charity in the UK, and in 2012 to mid 2013, it fed, it fed 347,000 Britons, of which 127,000 were children, through its network of 370 foodbanks. That is in addition to the hundreds of other foodbanks operated by local churches and charities.

Nigeria plans to send Astronauts into space by 2015

Oil-rich Nigeria, has already received £300 million this year for its space programme, and has been promised a total of £2.14 Billion over the next five years.

Money that should be spent in Britain!

So, as we pile money into "needy" countries with large oil reserves and space programmes, we learn that up to one million Britons a year rely on charitable foodbanks to avoid going hungry.

This is Britain today!

A typical foodbank. Manned by Volunteers

Typically, needy people are identified by their Doctors or social workers, and a voucher is issued which will entitle the recipient to a box containing three days supply of nutritionally balanced, non-perishable food.

The majority of foodbank clients are not homeless, or benefit scroungers, but proud British families who have been affected by low pay, pay freezes, redundancy and illness. With higher fuel and food bills, there is just not enough money to last the week. For many there is a stark choice, be cold or be hungry.

Meanwhile, with the country trillions of pounds in debt, forcing cutbacks to our hospitals, military, and fire service, our government continues to shovel money out of the country.

With a general election just 20 months away, nationalist manifestos must include the promise of drastic cuts to Britain's overseas aid bill, and a solemn promise to,

Put Britain and the British people first!

Ten More Asian Men Charged Over Sex Abuse Allegations

Ten men, mainly of Asian origin, have been charged with sex-abuse offences including, rape, sexual assault and trafficking of five young girls in Coventry, between May and September last year.

Brothers, Gulfraz, Faraz and Iztkhab Banaris, are charged with conspiracy to traffic girls for sexual exploitation. Iztkhab and Gulfraz Banaris are also charged with rape.

The men will face trial at Coventry Crown Court in November.

BNP Councillors Arrested on Race Hate Charges

Cumbria:

Police carried out early morning raids on the homes of two prominent members of the BNP following complaints relating to local election leaflets that had been distributed during the recent May elections. The two BNP activists, national treasurer, Clive Jefferson, and Dawn Charlton are both local councillors. They were taken to Carlisle police station and remanded in custody for 12 hours before being charged with "suspicion of incitement to racial hatred".

The complaints related to local election leaflets were made by two local Labour Party officials. The offending leaflets were aimed at the Labour candidates who had recruited some Polish leafleters, who not only leafleted the wrong ward, but used leaflets urging voter "Vote Today" when in fact the election was still a week away!

The BNP responded to this embarrassing blunder by Labour, with a leaflet including the phrase, "Pay peanuts-Get monkeys"!

Local Labour officials, severely embarrassed by the BNP leaflet, promptly went to the police and complained the wording was "Racially offensive".

As we all know, political correctness has become the guiding light for many police officers, and the innocent phrase was taken to be racially offensive. Now it will be up to a court to decide if any monkeys were offended by the phrase.

London:

300 Arrests at Notting Hill carnival

The annual Afro-Caribbean carnival, that blights the lives of many residents in the Notting Hill district of London every August Bank-Holiday weekend, again became the scene of rape, drug dealing, robbery and violence. While the media focused on the colourful parades and pictures of police officers dancing with revellers, three women were being sexually assaulted, 96 drug dealers were arrested, and over 300 people were treated for cuts and bruises. Other arrests included, carrying of weapons, assaults on police and grievous bodily harm.

The carnival has been the venue for violent disorder for at least the past 15 years. This year arrests were up on last year when 278 people were arrested.

Police made several arrests prior to the event, based on intelligence, but still the crime escalates.

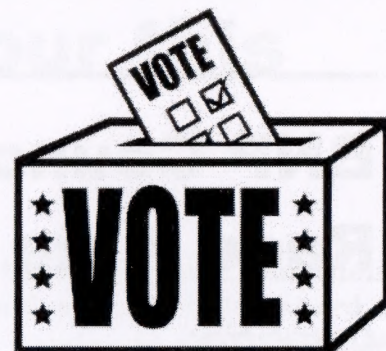

Carnival organisers have made alterations to the carnival finishing times and altered the original route in an effort to limit the crime, but still it continues.

A local resident told League Sentinel, "an outright ban on the event is the only answer".

Election Countdown

Economy and Immigration

With the General Election less than two years away, League Sentinel will present an occasional report on issues of interest to the British nationalist community.

A recent poll of 20,000 voters has revealed that the two top concerns of voters before the election is the economy and immigration. As time gets nearer to the election, voters will no doubt be bombarded by unreal financial plans from the Socialists, and meaningless giveaways from the Chancellor. Nationalists can concentrate on the financial drain of immigration and the financial madness of this government's overseas aid policies. Promises to undo some of the more class-driven measures imposed by this government such as the bedroom tax, and the cancellation of the manic HS2 project. A massive campaign exposing the amount that immigration costs Britain, in welfare benefits and NHS costs.

According to the poll, 60% of voters believe immigration has damaged Britain against the 17% who believe immigration is beneficial.

Immigrants Compete with Britons for Jobs, Housing and School Places

Of the 60%, most express concern that immigration has had an adverse effect on jobs and public services. Many of the 20,000 polled told the pollsters that they had personally lost out to immigrants in jobs, and public services such as housing or school places.

Most importantly, the study revealed that most voters were sceptical that the established parties could deal with the problem. "The politicians created the problem of mass immigration, so how can we trust them to deal with the problem" said one of those polled. Three quarters of those polled, 77%, said they would support a "drastic" reduction in immigration. Over a third, 36%, said they, or a family member, found it harder to get work because of competition from immigrants, and a quarter, 24%, said they, or a family member, had lost out to immigrants in the queue for housing or other public services. When asked if they thought immigration had damaged Britain, over 90% of UKIP voters agreed, as did 62% of Tory voters. But only 48% of Labour voters agreed with this statement, with 52% saying they thought mass immigration had actually benefited Britain.

With up to 30 million more immigrants entitled to come to Britain from Romania and Bulgaria in January 2014, the problems will massively increase.

Coming Soon. Millions More Immigrants from Romania and Bulgaria

Most Labour support comes from within major cities, and many of our major cities are now dominated by people born outside the UK, therefore nationalists should look seriously at contesting seats in traditional Tory constituencies. Also, with voters sceptical that the establishment parties have the policies, or the will to deal with the problems of mass immigration, nationalists have a track-record of opposing it.

If nationalist parties have the courage to openly advocate repatriation as well as a complete ban on immigration, it could be the key to electoral success.

ROMA CRIMEWAVE FUELS SUPPORT FOR FRENCH NATIONALISTS

As many French cities suffer from an unprecedented crime-wave conducted by Roma gypsies, French public opinion has swung towards supporting Nationalist parties, believing that establishment parties have neither the policies, nor the will, to take the necessary steps to resolve the problem.

With the European Union's relaxation of travel restrictions, up to 500,000 Roma gypsies from Romania and Bulgaria arrived in France expecting a "better life". Most of these live in shanty towns that have sprung up on the outskirts of many French cities. From these illegal camps, Roma gypsies travel each day into the city, to beg and steal. Roma children are an important part of the gangs, with almost 2000 minors arrested for street crimes in Central Paris last year!

Another French Gipsy is arrested

Whilst pick pocketing is still their major source of income, a worrying switch to the more violent "steaming" of tourists, by gangs of up to a dozen Roma, is on the increase. In one recent incident two minibuses full of tourists stuck in a traffic jam, were attacked by a gang of Roma, stealing mobile phones, cameras and thousands of euros in cash. This was in broad daylight and just a few minutes from the main airport, Charles de Gaulle airport, in the French capital of Paris!

Predictably, French reaction to this crime wave has been extremely hostile.

Even establishment politicians, such as Gilles Bourdouleix, the Mayor of Cholet, in Western France, publicly declared "Adolf Hitler did not kill enough Roma gypsies during the holocaust".

In many other parts of France, citizens are taking the law into their own hands and attacking Roma camps with petrol bombs in an attempt to drive them out. There have been dozens of such attacks in Paris alone.

Despite the promises by the French government to deport "tens of thousands" of Roma criminals, they managed just 13,000 in a full year. "A drop in the ocean" as many Frenchmen are saying. A voluntary repatriation programme where Roma were paid hundreds of euros in cash, and flown back to their homeland failed, when many of them simply pocketed the cash and then returned to France via budget coach trips.

Public disillusionment with the establishment parties has seen a massive surge of support for French nationalists, particularly the Front Nationale, led by the charismatic, Marine Le Pen.

Marine Le Pen: Front National

A recent opinion poll gave the FN 21%, putting them level with the establishment UMP and Socialist parties. This would potentially put the FN into a coalition government if elections were held tomorrow.

With forecasts that the crime-wave will increase, the Front Nationale believes that public hostility to the Roma criminals will see the party make massive gains, and even achieve power in the next general election!

Look Back at History

The B.U.F. and the London Elections of 1937

The London Municipal Elections of March 4th 1937, were the first elections in London that the British Union of Fascists ever contested. They stood candidates in Limehouse, Shoreditch and Bethnal Green, two candidates in each borough.

In Limehouse, the candidates were Anne Brock Griggs and C Wegg Prosser; in Bethnal Green North East, E.G. Clarke and Alexander Raven Thomson, and in Shoreditch, J.A. Bailey and William Joyce.

The Limehouse election count was held at the Municipal Baths in the Mile End Road. The nationalist candidates were treated with the same disrespect as they are now.

When the results were announced, each of the opposition candidates thanked the Returning Officer, and made a speech attacking the B.U.F. candidates who had 'dared to challenge them' on what they considered was their own sacred hallowed ground. Outside the building an anti-fascist mob had gathered, and anybody leaving the building wearing a fascist badge, or who was with a known Blackshirt, was subjected to a foul stream of abuse.

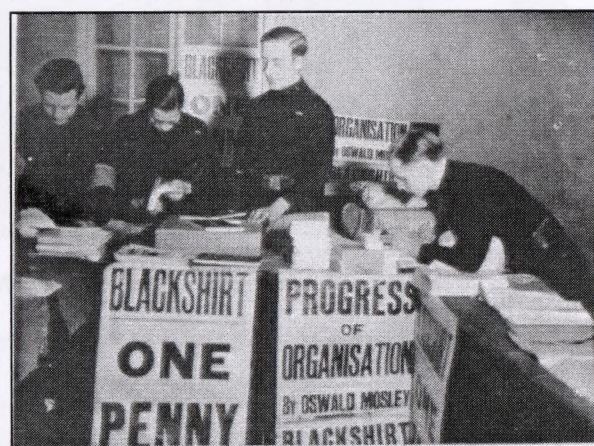

In several instances the attacks did not stop at words, and both men and women B.U.F. supporters, were kicked, scratched, punched and spat upon.

At the Shoreditch count, the Mayoress of Shoreditch, a Mrs Girling who was also the Labour candidate, referred to the British Union candidates as dirty rats and no gentlemen. She stated that errand boys had called her unpleasant names, and that they had been hired by the Fascists to do so.

A feature of elections in the 1930s was that only the heads of households were allowed to vote. With the housing shortages in East London, children of voting age lived at home a lot longer than they do now and young married couples were inclined to move in with their parents.

BNP Propaganda Unit Hard at Work

The result was that in East London, one third of electors were denied the right to vote. These were the very people who were more likely to have supported Mosley, as the B.U.F. was essentially a movement of youth.

Even so, the B.U.F. candidates managed to win up to 24% of the votes cast.

The B.U.F. and the London Elections of 1937

The Newspapers of the time reported their surprise at the size of the Fascist Vote

At this early stage of the BUF, the movement had began to attract support from some national newspapers, and most reported favourably on the size of the BUF vote.

From the Manchester Guardian

"The results gained by the six Fascist candidates (3,028 and 3,022 in North East Bethnal Green, 2,564 and 2,492 in Shoreditch, and 2,086 by each candidate in Limehouse) are rather surprising indications of the strength which Fascism has attained in some working-class districts."

From the Observer.

"True none of their candidates were returned, but the size of their vote was a surprise even to those in touch with the East End."

From the left-wing, Daily Worker

"A disturbing feature of the elections is the large number of votes recorded for the Fascist candidates."

The Daily Mail Supports the BUF

In his election analysis, Mosley recognised that the biggest problem a new party faces, in order to get a foothold on the council, is that of tactical voting. Voters may well support your cause but they know that a new party has little hope of winning and so they won't vote for you in case an opponent whom they particularly dislike gets in as a result. For instance, the Labour voter fearing a vote for British Union would be a wasted vote, will continue to vote Labour to keep the Tories out, while the Tory voter will do likewise. He will continue to vote Tory to keep Labour out. Both types may well support your policies but don't vote for you. However, the moment they are convinced that you have a serious prospect of winning the seat you will get their support. At that moment your vote makes an immense upward leap.

At their first attempt in London, the British Union polled an average of 18% in the seats they contested. Only the head of the household was allowed to vote. The same percentage of votes recorded at a General Election in every constituency would have given them 4,000,000 votes. In the proportional vote system which was being used on the continent in the 1930s (and still is) the Blackshirts would have gained 110 seats in Parliament. By 1937, when this election took place, the British Union had already announced their first 100 Parliamentary candidates for the 1940 General Election.

Unfortunately for them, the war started in 1939 and the 1940 General Election was cancelled.

We Marched with Mosley - The Authorised History of the British Union of Fascists by Richard Bellamy.

Richard Reynell Bellamy joined Oswald Mosley's Blackshirts almost at the start and went out onto British streets to fight for peace and prosperity through Mosley's policies. In 1940 he was imprisoned under the infamous Defence Regulation 18B. In the course of his political odyssey Bellamy, came to know just about every British Blackshirt worth knowing and attended all the major Leader meetings and many local ones besides. Towards the end of his life, at Oswald Mosley's request, he wrote it all down for posterity - providing this unique inside story of the British Union of Fascists.

Islamists Riot in Paris over Burka Conviction

Over 400 militant Islamists attacked a Police Headquarters on the outskirts of Paris after a Muslim woman was fined for wearing a full face burka in public.

Over 400 protestors attacked the Police HQ in Trappes, using petrol bombs and stones. Several police officers were injured before armed riot police managed to disperse the protestors.

The incident began when a man whose wife had been fined for wearing the full face burka in public attacked several police officers and was arrested. A ban on wearing the full face Islamic veil in public was introduced in 2011. Women who flout the law face fines of £130 and are required to attend citizenship classes.

BURKA: Banned from wearing in public.

A French MP faces criminal charges after confronting a large group of gypsies camping illegally in his constituency and allegedly telling them, "Hitler didn't kill enough of you people"! The MP, Gilles Bourdouleix, is a member of the liberal, UDI party. He denies the allegation, saying he merely repeated comments made by a journalist reporting on the illegal camp, after several of the gypsies gave "Hitler-style salutes". The secretary of the League of St George has written to Mr Bourdouleix, pointing out that there was no evidence that the former German leader, Adolf Hitler had ever killed gypsies, or anybody else.

Syrian Fighters Have Benefits Stopped

Islamists living in the Flemish city of Antwerp, face having their state benefits stopped if they leave Belgium to fight in Syria. Already 29 Syrian volunteers have been removed from social welfare registers by the Municipal authorities in Antwerp. This automatically cuts them off from all state benefits. A spokesman for the Liberal-nationalist, New Flemish Alliance party, which controls the local municipality, told League Sentinel, "Belgian nationals fighting in Syria, are obviously not available for work in Belgium, and therefore must lose their unemployment benefit. This has an effect on other state benefits". The decision follows a report by Belgian intelligence services that, "hundreds of Belgian nationals of Arab origin were fighting as mercenaries, with the rebel forces in Syria, while still receiving social welfare payments".

Germany

NPD Launch Election Campaign

The German nationalist, National Democratic Party (NPD) have launched their general election campaign with planned visits to 130 towns in just a couple of weeks. This will involve visiting up to three towns a day in what is described as their "Deutschlandtour".

NPD Election Campaign

The party, still believed to be heavily infiltrated by government spies, had its tour schedule stolen and then leaked to anti-Fascist groups. So now plans to decide which towns to target spontaneously.

The German authorities fear that if the NPD are allowed equal opportunity to get publicity for their policies, they will become a very serious force in German politics. To this extent, as well as facing just political opposition from other parties, they have to contend with the full force of the German state to destroy them. In 2003, the Federal German Court dismissed an application by the government to ban the party, but now 16 regional states are making their own attempts to have the party banned.

The German media have been given instructions to only report news items which portray the NPD in a bad light, or to adopt a "no platform" policy of not reporting any items mentioning the party.

This, in a supposedly "democratic state" within the European Union. No mention of "human rights" here! The NPD will be parading their campaign bus bedecked with the slogans, "Preserve Our Homeland-Stop Immigration" and "We don't want to be Europe's Paymaster".

Netherlands

Dutch and French Nationalists in Election Pact

The Dutch Freedom Party, led by Geert Wilders, and the French, Front Nationale, are to jointly contest the European elections next year. The decision came after a meeting between Wilders and his French counterpart, Marine Le Pen. In an announcement to Dutch media, Ms Le Pen said, "All patriotic parties that fight for their identity, fight for sovereignty, should unite in the European elections. Both parties take a hard line against immigration and the continuing Islamisation of Europe, and in a recent poll, the Freedom Party outpolled both the ruling Labour and Liberal coalition parties.

Neither party is affiliated to any of the existing groups within the European Parliament. Mr Wilders is scheduled to meet the Flemish, Vlaams Belang MEP, Filip Dewinter, and may invite the Flemish nationalist party into the election pact.

New Dutch Group Attack "Culture of Mandela Worship"

Identitair Verzet, is a newly formed Dutch, "Ethno-Nationalist" group, which not only advocates nationalist policies within the Netherlands, but extends its support to their Boer folk-brothers in South Africa. In a recent campaign, they published details of Nelson Mandela's extreme-left political views and past terrorist activities, much to the embarrassment of the Liberal Dutch authorities. Politically, the new group has aligned itself with another Dutch Folk-nationalist group, Voorpost, who protested in the Hague last year against the unveiling of a statue of Mandela.

Identitaire Verzet, describes itself as part of the "Greater Netherlands action group" fighting to preserve Dutch identity against immigration and Islamisation.

Why Does the US Honour this Adulterer?

Americans are amongst the friendliest, most generous people I have ever met, but their political decisions are sometimes unfathomable. What other civilised nation would regard a lying adulterer as honourable, to the extent of creating a national holiday to commemorate the date of his birth? League Sentinel takes a look at the life of American icon, and serial adulterer, the Reverend Martin Luther King.

Liar, cheat and serial adulterer,
Martin Luther King

Martin Luther King was born in Atlanta, Georgia in 1929. A serious young man, he became an ordained Baptist Minister by the age of 25. But whilst he liked to present himself as a God-fearing, bible-thumping old-style Baptist preacher, King got involved early in his career in the highly politicised, Civil Rights movement. In 1955, he was credited with leading the segregated bus boycott in Montgomery, Alabama, but continued to hide behind the façade of an active Christian minister, by becoming the President of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC). During this period, King continued to preach the Gospel at various Baptist churches throughout the Southern states. But one important facet of Christianity, was constantly ignored by King, the seventh commandment, "thou shalt not commit adultery". For despite his marriage in 1953, to Coretta Scott King, a young black woman who was to bear him four children, King was an inveterate womaniser, a serial adulterer! In 1962, King came to national prominence through his part in organising a mass rally in Birmingham, Alabama, in which white police officers were seen to viciously attack the non-violent protesters. The television coverage went out nationally and virtually overnight King became a national figure, and the darling of many liberal whites, particularly women. This was an opportunity that King could not resist. An aide of King later revealed that King always went for fair (white) women, never dark ones. His sexual appetite meant that he would often commit adultery with up to three women in one night. A later report describes King, the married Baptist minister, and father of four children, as a "sex addict". In 1963, King was planning a mass march on Washington DC. At the same time, the US government agency, the FBI was getting concerned about King's growing power and celebrity status and applied for permission to bug his offices and hotel rooms. The bugs proved King's dedication to adultery! On the night before the Washington march, King was heard phoning various women, trying to arrange a sex orgy! Knowledge of King's adulterous behaviour began spreading beyond his close circle of friends, and there had been some criticism from Christian groups, but King was al powerful, and continued his adultery right up to the day of his death. On his last night on earth, King was staying at the Lorraine Motel in Memphis, Tennessee. During the evening, King's aides reported that King bedded two women. At 8am in the morning, a close friend of King, the Reverend Ralph Abernathy revealed, the door to King's bedroom flew open and a third women was seen to be arguing with King, who "lost his temper and knocked her across the bed". Shortly after, King went out to the room's balcony to smoke a cigarette. It was to be his last! The date was the 4th of April 1968, and just across from the Lorraine Motel, a sniper was taking aim. Shots rang out and King fell fatally wounded. An ambulance was called but King died on his way to hospital.

The assassin, James Earl Ray, was later described in some Baptist churches as "doing God's will" in punishing King for his betrayal of his ministry.

The FBI evidence of King's serial adultery was mysteriously ignored by the mass media, and King went into history as an icon of the civil rights movement. The US government compounded the cover up by awarding King posthumously, the Congressional Gold Medal and the Presidential Medal of Freedom. In 1986, Martin Luther King Day was introduced as a Federal Holiday.

OBITUARY

Roger Spinnewijn

26/1/1930 - 5/9/2013

It was much sadness that we learned of the recent death of Flemish Comrade, Roger Spinnewijn. Roger was a dedicated Flemish nationalist, and a loyal Comrade of the League of St George. Born in the medieval city of Ghent, Roger was intensely proud of his Flemish heritage and spent most of his adult life fighting for Flemish rights. Although a staunch advocate of Flemish independence, Roger was very approachable by nationalists from throughout Europe. Roger was a regular visitor to England, and in 1971, he gave a speech at a meeting of the League of St George, on the subject of , Language, Culture and Identity.

But Roger was not just a speaker, he was an activist! As a senior member of the patriotic, Vlaams Militante Order, Roger took part in countless demonstrations against the Belgian state.

In 1973, he joined a small group of VMO comrades in a secret mission to recover the remains of a Flemish patriot, Cyril Verschaeve, from a grave in Austria, and to rebury his body in Flemish soil. The operation was codenamed, Operation Brevier. The mission was a success, with the remains of the patriotic Flemish priest, being eventually interred in the cemetery of the Flemish town of Alveringem. Fearing an attempt by the Belgian authorities to dig up the new grave, the VMO had the grave filled with cement. Roger said afterwards, "Cyril Verschaeve is back in Flanders, and is staying here"! In 1985, Roger and several VMO colleagues travelled to Spain to meet the legendary Belgian war hero, Leon Degrelle. Eventually, the Belgian government, fed up with being constantly embarrassed by VMO activities banned the organisation. But Roger and his comrades would not give up the fight, they simply changed tactics. Roger became a founding member of the patriotic Flemish political party, Vlaams Blok, and in 1991 Roger proudly saw his eldest son John elected as a VB senator.

But now, our dear comrade has gone. On a rainy Flanders day, Roger was laid to rest, reunited with his beloved wife, together again in the village churchyard in Loppem, near Bruges. Flemish nationalists, politicians and dignitaries, joined nationalists from throughout Europe at the church to show their respect for a man, rightly called the "Lion of Flanders".
